Samarkand has a history stretching back over 3,000 years, making it one of the oldest cities in the world. The city from Arabian Nights was an important junction of caravan trade on the Silk Road and quickly developed into a key centre of trade. Hence, this fascinating city was, and still is, one of the biggest and most important commercial centres in the whole Orient. It was a meeting place of goods and cultures, a place where merchandise from Europe, Persia, India, the Arabian Peninsula, China and Africa were bought and sold. This was the place you could buy every known good. Which is why we decided to bring together the world's best and most exquisite fruits under one name:
